

I do not want any unsolicited calls... period. As a dual income family, the LAST thing I want to come home to on TOP of everything else I need to attend to, is a sales call. It is intrusive in my private life, and just as anyone has the right to be heard, I have the right NOT to listen. If I express my wishes to the telemarketers to stop calling me for products that I do not want by signing up on the "DO NOT CALL" list, I have expressed my rights for privacy. If telemarketers do not respect this list, then a phone call from any solicitor is nothing more than harassment (which is against the law)!
